Hey Patalliro.
What are you saying? Even though people are giving themselves to a world of perversion.
Let's stop this random game of make-believe pretty boys.
Pretty boys like to use random difficult words.
You've called me a lot of things up to now, but this is the first time you called me 'squid beak'.
Why does he look like that?
He said he's been pursuing the aesthetics of "boy's love"...
Where's Mark Lester, squid beak?
The soles of these shoes feel like Bancoran.
Am I supposed to call you "Mood"? Hey, Patalliro.
I'm not in the mood to be called that.
Don't say "Patalliro, Patalliro". Can't you at least call me something like Mark Lester's sorrow?

Suffo-cated?
Recently I've been suffocated with thoughts about pretty boys, like why they exist or what their value is.
I don't know what that means but I can guess by the way you said it.
Knock it off. It's like a pig searching for pork and ham.
It was a joke. Come here, I have to talk to you.
Not that sort of suffocation, idiot!

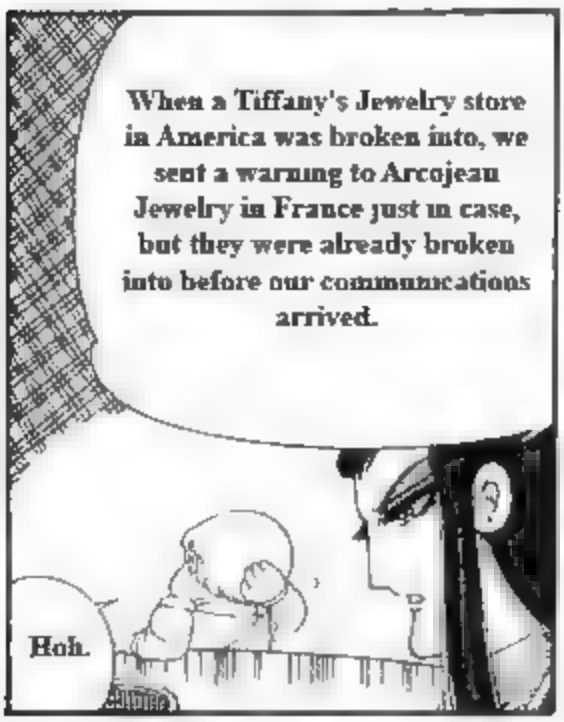
Hmm hmm. You should have said so from the beginning.
We've learned that only large diamonds were stolen from jewelry stores in America, France and Germany, and banks in Belgium, Holland and Switzerland.



When a Tiffany's Jewelry store in America was broken into, we sent a warning to Arcojeau Jewelry in France just in case, but they were already broken into before our communications arrived.

There's someone I want you to meet. During the war he was one of Dr. Shugelg's colleagues. He has an interesting story to tell us about the doctor.
Well then, let's have a round of listening to the story.
Ban-coran.
Chief.
MI6 Head-quarters
You should have pursued the car while taking care of that idiot.

Doctor why do you cry so~!*

Back then Shugelg had a theory. At the time we laughed away at his empty dreams, but...

My body isn't making a sound but there's a ringing in my ears.
Then he'd point them towards the Earth to fall down. And what would happen then?
The temperature of space is absolutely zero, so the materials in space are absolute zero, too.
The material is expected to be strong with relatively low heat conductivity.
In short, this is what he thought.
First, he'd send a substance to space.
All the clouds that the material made on the way would be frozen.
From the friction of passing through the Earth's atmosphere, the objects would lose their protective barriers little by little.
Gusaa - Squeeze
All the clouds that the material went through on the way would be frozen.
Then the protective material around them would vanish in the sky at about 20,000 to 30,000 meters, leaving the core material at absolute zero. The core material at that altitude would create large amounts of steam. In other words, clouds.
U'waaah!
Deal with the ringing in your ear for eternity!

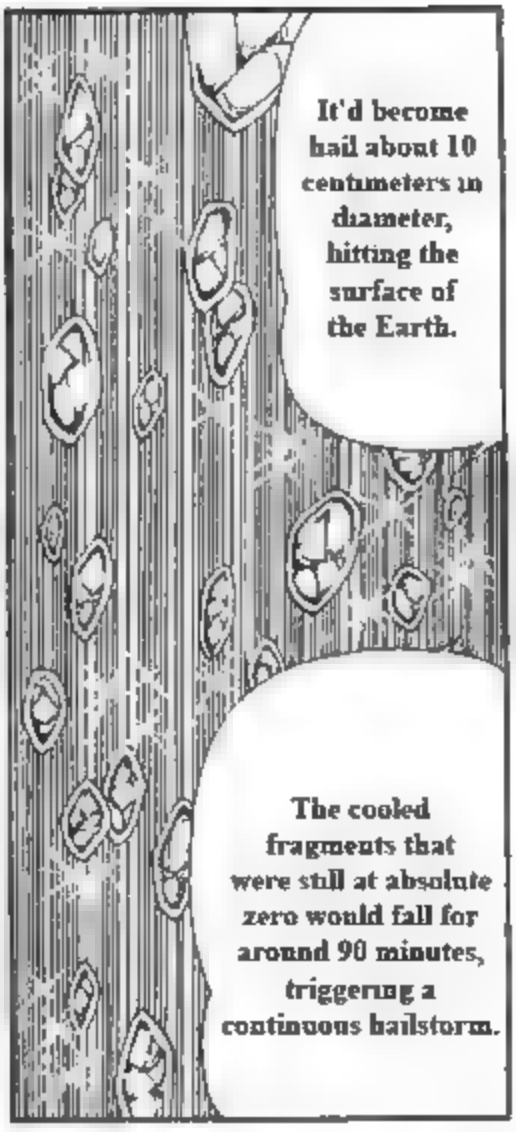
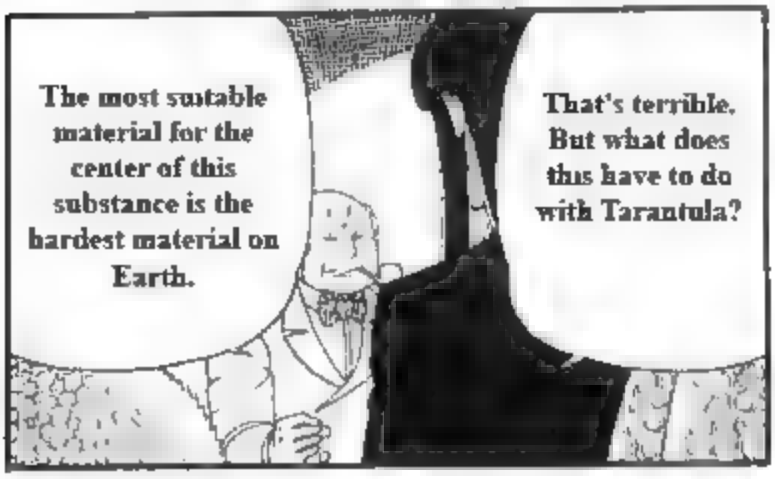
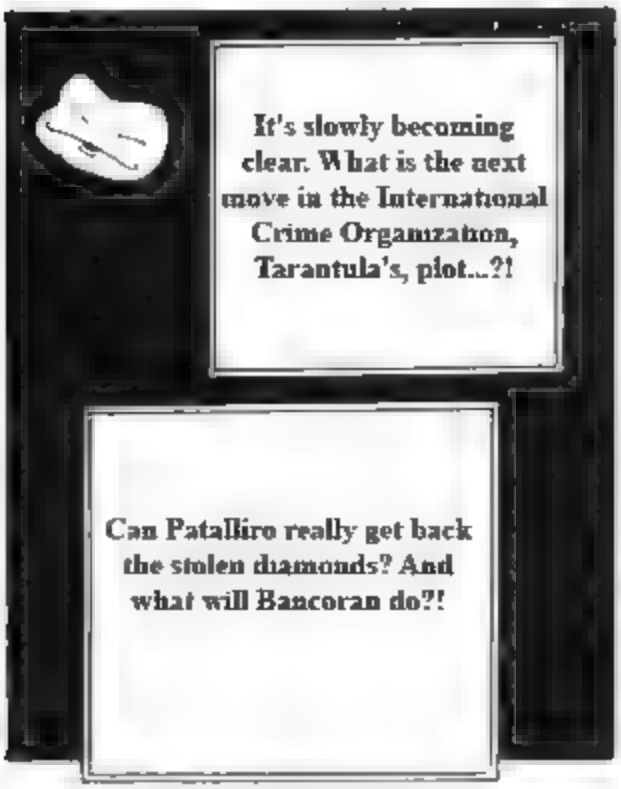
It has the destructive power of nuclear weapons without the threat of radiation.
Do you understand what this means? Any city on Earth being hit all day by hail 10 centimeters in diameter would become a beehive.



It'd become hail about 10 centimeters in diameter, hitting the surface of the Earth.
The cooled fragments that were still at absolute zero would fall for around 90 minutes, triggering a continuous hailstorm.



The most suitable material for the center of this substance is the hardest material on Earth.
That's terrible. But what does this have to do with Tarantula?



It's slowly becoming clear. What is the next move in the International Crime Organization, Tarantula's, plot...?!
Can Patalliro really get back the stolen diamonds? And what will Bancoran do?!

The other day you had a chance to kill him at the Thames River. However, you didn't kill him.
You only tried to put him to sleep and restrain him. Why?
Bancoran isn't simply a major working for MI6. He's also possibly the leader of Interpol's core police organization. He's a capable enemy.
We ordered you to kill Major Bancoran.
Go, and this time take the Major's life.
Go ahead, child of Tarantula.
But he escaped, that's too bad.
I can follow your plan.
If I killed him someone else would become the leader. If I took him hostage it would throw the movements of the police into chaos.

Couldn't the American army shoot it down with a missile?
Meaning... the materials for the Stardust Project were loaded instead?
Prob-ably.
According to some information we just received they should have loaded items for Skylab. One unit seems to have been left behind.
What about catching the Beautiful Youth Corps?
I don't like it, but couldn't Bancoran get them to fess up?
